

Mentoring can incorporate a get together for ex-offenders and family with church family.

Just think how blessed one would feel after successfully helping someone have a more intimate walk with the Lord. Even in the times of trials, imagine the closer walk the mentor would have with the Lord as he or she sacrifices for one of “the least of these” knowing he or she did it for the Lord. (Matt. 25:40)

To be available to mentor send your name, address, and e-mail, and a brief description of whom you are interested in mentoring, male with male and female with female, and you will be carefully matched with someone similar.

Mentoring

Mentoring is a vital part of ministering to the lost.

A Mentor is the same as an advisor, a counselor, a guide, or a teacher. Rehoboth Jail & Prison Ministry is only looking for Christian mentors. We are seeking such from local churches and from Christian families who are a Godly example by the way they are living. The mentors cannot be afraid to encourage others in Christian living and know how to suggest life changes that will allow the mentored one to grow more intimate with God. At the same time, the mentor needs to make sure they are not conveying a superior attitude.

Since Rehoboth Jail & Prison Ministry is familiar with dealing with inmates and their families, we will be happy to help you get acquainted with ways to help people without getting hurt yourself through the mentoring process. However, if you have had experience mentoring we welcome your training. We need people willing to sacrifice their time to be a blessing to a young boy or girl, a mother or father, or a former inmate and his live-in girlfriend (which we run across in many cases).

The process needs to begin and end with the love of God being shared. It is not the sole purpose of the mentor to correct every wrong in the lives of the ones they are counseling. That is the work of the Holy Spirit to bring correction. Rather, it is the mentor's responsibility to patiently and humbly give them the Word of God and guidance by example. After the mentor gets to know them it will be much easier for both the mentor and the mentored.

The Mentors that Rehoboth Jail & Prison Ministry is looking for will need to be Christians, defined as such by their obvious Christ-like life and love of the inerrant Word of God. Someone who lives out their faith will not have what they say about God contradict with what the one being mentored sees in the mentor's life.

All age mentors are needed, both male and female, to mentor men and women either out of prison or getting out soon. We

Young or old need mentoring and shows the love of God.

Local churches can be involved in mentoring inmates and other outreaches.

women. Mentoring can start with letters through the Pen Pal outreach and take on a more personal direction when the inmate comes home. The family of an inmate who does not know Jesus needs to be mentored toward the ways of the Lord, or if they are already saved, they still need fellowship with like-minded believers to keep their spirits up while their spouse is separated from them by prison fences.

All the outreaches of Rehoboth Jail & Prison Ministry work together with each other to develop a better Christian walk for those being ministered to, and also those doing the ministering. Being a good friend is the best way to mentor anyone, and willingness to sacrifice time in the busy world is something that does not seem to be very readily available.

Yet, a mentor receives as much of a blessing as the one he is mentoring, if the Lord is in the midst of the mentoring process.
